Ocean Beach Seawall

CITY MANAGER RHODES MAKING ESTIMATE OF COST TO PROPERTY OWNERS

As the first step in the proposed improvement of the ocean front at Ocean Beach, the council this week instructed City Manager Rhodes to make an estimate of the cost of a sea wall extending from the Silver Spray Plunge to the Mission Bay Bridge. The plans suggested call for a 20-foot promenade along the sea wall, with ornamental light standards at suitable intervals. It is stated that the council will not take any definite action until the cost estimate has been secured and the method of assessment properly stipulated. The plan outlined by the proponents is to assess half the cost to the ocean front property, and the other half to the entire Ocean Beach district graduating the amount back from the beach to the Point Loma line. The sea wall would reclaim considerable private property.

JACK NEUMONT OCCUPIES NEW BAIT HOUSE BUILDING AT BRIDGE ENTRANCE

Completely equipped for the service of fisher-folks, Jack Neumont announces his occupancy of a brand new building right at the Ocean Beach entrance of the Mission Bay bridge. The street number is 5050 West Point Loma boulevard and the telephone call is Bayview 0405. Bait House—"Jack's Place" is the designation decided upon for the popular new resort, which is ideally located at the junction of highway traffic across the inlet bridge. Prompt and satisfactory service is guaranteed at all times.

SAM LIPSETT MISSING SINCE LAST MONDAY

It is announced that the police have been requested to search for Sam Lipsett, 16 years of age, who has been missing from his home, 5043 Newport avenue, Ocean Beach, since Monday afternoon. He is five feet seven inches tall, weighs 135 pounds, has a dark complexion, brown eyes and brown hair. When he left home he was wearing a light gray cap, khaki trousers, leggins and a tan shirt. His mother, Mrs. H. Lipsett, is worried over his mysterious disappearance and it is thought that he is in Arizona on a hiking trip with a recent acquaintance.

AL E. LAMBLA BUSY MAKING "LIVE WIRE" CAMPAIGN FOR CONSTABLE

Al E. Lambla, candidate for the office of Constable, is probably one of the best known men in the political field who seeks office at the coming election. Coming to San Diego some thirty-eight years ago, he has been here ever since. He has been in the automobile garage business for some twenty years and has been very active in every line of that profession from racing driver to repairing autos.

Al. was born in San Francisco and naturally is a strong believer in California and especially in San Diego, where he is very active in several fraternal organizations, besides being vice-president of the Mission Beach Chamber of Commerce, and by his financial support of all civic enterprises he is considered by his friends a loyal citizen.

His home at Mission Beach is the meeting place of his friends, where the latch string is always out. He is the same "Al." at all times day or night, yesterday, today or tomorrow and his friends are boosting him with the knowledge that he is qualified and will make good his promise "Fairness to one and all, with a faithful discharge of his duties."

AQUATIC MEET TONIGHT BY BOY SCOUTS

The San Diego Council of Boy Scouts will hold its ninth annual aquatic meet tonight (Saturday, Aug. 14) at the Mission Beach bath house. According to all reports, a large number of troops will enter the event.

BEACH BARBECUE FOR BENEFIT OF CATHOLIC CHURCH HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL

Located in pleasant surroundings, particularly suitable to the occasion, the barbecue and band concert held near the Merry-Go-Round at the foot of Santa Monica avenue on the ocean front last Sunday afternoon, for the benefit of the Sacred Heart Catholic Church, proved a most decided success in every way.

Over half a ton of barbecued beef, excellently prepared by the famous "Jimmy" Murphy, was served to the hundreds upon hundreds of guests and members of the church congregation in attendance. Besides the splendid band concert by the Naval Training Station Band, the occasion was enlivened with a pie-eating contest, beach contests and games, and appropriate orations by John P. Mills and Father P. C. Santy, with short talks by political candidates and others, introduced by Harry Vonderberg as the happy and popular chairman of the day. The several committees in charge of the affair are worthy of unanimous congratulations.

JUSTICE DELONG HAS HANDLED MANY CASES

Justice Charles B. DeLong, who is a candidate for the Superior Court has submitted a tabulation of the number of cases that he had handled during his term as Justice of the Peace is San Diego.

The imposing totals disclose that he has passed upon over 10,245 Traffic Cases, 3,233 Criminal cases of all kinds, 3,219 small claims actions and 1,790 civil actions. This volume of business has brought experience in every line of litigation that a court must pass upon.

Judge DeLong has just returned from a two weeks' vacation. He spent the first week hunting votes in the back country and last week went fishing down Ensenada way, catching lots of fish and had a good time camping out.

NEW LOW PRICES ON TIRES AND TUBES LISTED BY HENRY EULBERG

Special attention of automobile owners is called to the attractive display announcement by Henry Eulberg of the new low prices on Goodyear and Fisk tires and tubes at the Ocean Beach Garage, 1868 Newport avenue. "Why worry with retreads?" says the experienced Henry "when you can get new rubber for that vacation trip at prices beyond compare." A glance at the list is convincing.

PLUMBER BEALE PROMOTED

More honor to Mission Beach! Ed Beale of 826 Ormund Court, who for two years has served as deputy city plumbing inspector, has been lately promoted to the position of chief inspector of the city plumbing department. Congratulations to Mr. Beale.

FORTNIGHTLY CLUB HONORED

Mrs. J. M. Porter of 730 Santa Clara, was recently hostess at a party that was as delightful as it was different, when she entertained the members of the Fortnightly club. The guests, all of whom were from San Diego, partook of a special luncheon prepared and served by Mrs. Chapel. Later they adjourned to Mrs. Porter's home, where the afternoon was spent at bridge. The guests were Mesdames Baxter, Platt, DeMotte, Lykens, Forest, Mills and Mrs. Amie Paine of Los Angeles, who is a house guest of Mrs. Porter.

HOUSE GUESTS ENTERTAINED

Mr. and Mrs. William S. Hunt entertained with a musicale last Thursday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar L. Hendricks, and their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Austin of Inglewood, Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Piersall, Louise, Verne and Irene Hendricks, and Phylis, Doretha, Bobby and Billy Piersall. Mr. and Mrs. Hendricks, who have been occupying one of the Hunt cottages on Ostend Court for th summer, are leaving soon, while Mr. and Mrs. Piersall and family will occupy the cottage at 817 Ostend Court for several weeks. Both Mr. and Mrs. Austin are musicians of the first order and added much to the enjoyment of the evening.

Around Five Points

Mrs. G. M. Selby, Secretary Civic League, Special Representative for "The Beach News"

FIVE POINTS CIVIC LEAGUE

The Five Points Civic League held its regular weekly meeting last Friday at the U-Ban-O chili parlor, 1845 Moore street, the members gathering as is their custom for eats before the business meeting.

A petition was presented asking that a portion of this bayside community be designated for industrial purposes, but after thorough discussion of the matter the members were almost a unit in deciding that they did not want Five Points in class D.

The committee having in charge the petition for cluster lights for the community reported progress, which while necessarily slow because many property owners had to be reached by mail, was gratifying. The committee hopes to have their work successfully completed before the last meeting in August.

The league voted to get busy with the petition for mail service at once and instructed President Carey to obtain the regular petition form and organize the league members for a speedy drive which would, in a few hours, cover the territory.

M. B. Keyser was elected vice-president of the League and U. Urbaney of the U-Ban-O chili factory was elected treasurer, both these offices having been vacant for a time.

FIVE POINTS SOCIAL TIME

Mr. and Mrs. William Heck and daughter of California, Mo., visited last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hunter, 1818 McKee street. Mr. and Mrs. Hunter are former residents of California, Mo., where Mr. Hunter practiced law. Mr. Hunter has the distinction of being the first Republican elected to the state legislature of Missouri and the only one for a long time.

Herbert Smith, an uncle of Samuel Green, and L. Kannard, both of Los Angeles, visited at the home of Mrs. Samuel P. Green, 3997 California street, recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Berry and daughter, Miss Betty, of Hollywood, and Donald Wooley of Franklin, Ind., were visitors at the home of Dr. and Mrs. G. M. Selby last Sunday. Mr. Berry is an instructor in Hollywood high school while Mrs. Berry, Mrs. Selby and Mr. Wolley all attended Franklin college at Franklin, Ind.

One of the latest businesses to enter Five Points is the Mission Box Lunches at the red windmill on Moss street. Mr. and Mrs. Mark H. Lord are the proprietors, recently of Los Angeles.

Mrs. L. W. Whitaker, 1835 Moore street, has returned from a week's visit with Mrs. Mary Harsha at her summer home on Palomar mountain.

Walter M. Robertson of the Five Points Service Station, is enjoying his annual two weeks vacation.

After spending a month at the Old Soldiers' Home at Sawtelle, Calif., E. T. Fowler is back at his home with his son, E. W. Fowler, 3797 Kettner boulevard. Although a G. A. R. man past 80 years of age, Mr. Fowler enjoys dancing as much as in his youth and still trips the light fantastic with the best of them.

Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Winget and daughter Lois, recently of Los Angeles, have taken the apartment at 3801 California street, and are intending to make San Diego their home. They report themselves pleased with San Diego and impressed with its future. Mr. Winget is a contractor and builder.

Mr. James Murphy is a new employe at the Five Points Service Station. His soubriquet is "Jimmie, the ladies' man."

J. J. Carey, president of the Five Points Civic League, has been confined at his home at Loma Portal all week with a severe cold.

ADELINE WHALING FIRST SAN DIEGO GIRL TO FINISH IN CHANNEL RACE

With nearly thirty swimmers of both sexes and all ages "from six to sixty," entered in the seventh annual channel swim last Sunday, the contests proved greatly successful. The event was viewed by thousands stationed on shore and afloat in craft of all kinds from warships to canoes. A number of local swimmers were entered, and among them Miss Adeline Whaling of Cape May avenue, won the honor of being the first San Diego girl to cros sthe finish line. She came in seventh and was awarded a beautiful cup for her excellent performance. Her time was 9:47, and Miss Dorothy Justins finished eighth in 9:49, being another popular beach representative among the eighty-eight women entries.

STRIKING NEW SIGN AT KIERSTEAD'S SERVICE STATION ATTRACTS ATTENTION

Brightly illuminated with a floodlight at night and shining in silvery colors by day, a huge new sign has been erected on the roof of Kierstead's Service Station at Cable and Voltaire streets. Patent rights are being obtained by G. P. Goodfellow and P. A. Kierstead, owners of the new advertising device. It is about 8x10 feet in size and the lettering changes with revolution of three triangles. The sign is both automatic and intermittent and attracts widespread attention at all hours. Space will be let on the sign at a nominal price by the owners.

STEPHEN CONNELL WAGING VIGOROUS CAMPAIGN FOR OFFICE OF DIST. ATTORNEY

Citing the San Diego county grand jury report of 1921 as evidence that the present district attorney's office is not working with the sheriff's office, the coroner or the city police in combating crime, Stephen Connell is waging a vigorous campaign for the office of district attorney. As there are only two candidates for this office, the race will be decided at the august primary.

"San Diego is facing the most prosperous era of her history, but she is also facing the greatest amount of crime she has ever had to deal with," said Connell in a recent speech, "for prosperity brings the criminals who prey upon it.

"The crime wave in America is widespread. Organized vice has changed its outward form. It goes now in fine clothes, backed by unlimited money, an almost endless chain of accomplices and scores of sharp and expert criminal lawyers. Even under the most favorable conditions, it is extremely difficult for the authorities to cope with the new order of criminal, but when the authorities are pulling apart, instead of working together, it is almost impossible to make any effective headway. An hour's delay in getting on the scene of a crime, often means the loss or destruction of important evidence without which it is extremely difficult to secure a conviction. This has too often been the case in San Diego."

Connell has been a resident of San Diego for twenty-three years.

NEW SECRETARY-MANAGER SAN DIEGO CHAMBER

San Diego and Imperial County residents will find a sympathetic friend in Orville S. McPherson, the newly appointed secretary-manager of the San Diego Chamber of Commerce, who succeeds John Lawrence Fox to that position. Mr. McPherson has devoted all his life to public service work, and a good part of it to the agricultural interests.

The new San Diego secretary has been field representative of the California Development Association for several years, and immediately prior to coming to San Diego organized the Pacific Coast Transportation Advisory Board of the American Railway Association of which he was made executive secretary.

THE "BUG" HAD SPEED

A popular Ocean Beach young man recently grasped the opportunity of buying a Ford "Bug" at the bargain price of $35, so the story goes. Last Monday night he decided to test its running qualities. And so did a speed cop on State street about 2 a. m. A police judge assessed the owner $25 next day for breaking the speed laws, and he's now positively assured that the "bug" has pep and plenty of it.

Sciots Band Concert

SECOND ANNUAL DANCE BY PENINSULA MASONIC CLUB

Next Thursday night, August 19, the Peninsula Masonic Club will hold its second annual dance, with a special concert by the Sciot band at the Ocean Beach dance pavilion. Tickets are being sold at 50 cents per person and all indications point to a larger and representative gathering in attendance.

SHUMWAY & McNEILL ANNOUNCE OPENING OF BAYVIEW BAIT HOUSE

On or about August 15th, the new firm of Shumway & McNeill announce the opening of the Bayview Bait House at 5041 West Point Loma boulevard, near the Mission Bay bridge. The building has been remodelled and thoroughly renovated and a full line of fishing tackle and bait will be carried. Mr. Shumway has recently moved to Ocean Beach with his family from Morena and contemplates building a new residence, meanwhile residing at 1779 Cable street. Mr. McNeill is also a recent arrival and the new firm are preparing to extend their activities.

PRINCIPAL PETE W. ROSS ON VACATION IN CANADA

From Victoria, British Columbia, Principal Pete W. Ross, of the Point Loma High School, sends word to "The Beach News" that he is greatly enjoying his vacation. A marked article in "The Daily Colonist," forwarded by him, states that 40,000 California rainbow trout have been released in the Shawingan Lake on Vancouver island.

ERNEST R. CHILDS IS EXCEPTIONALLY WELL QUALIFIED FOR COUNTY SURVEYOR

Ernest R. Childs, county surveyor, who is a candidate for re-election at the primary and general elections, is admirably fitted by training and experience for the office which he has filled so efficiently during the last four years, according to his host of friends throughout the city and county.

A resident of San Diego for more than 25 years, Childs has devoted a great deal of his time to civic affairs. He is an active member of the aviation, state and county roads and educational committees of the chamber of commerce; member of the University of California Alumni Association, and of the American Association of Engineers, and has played an important part in the organization and work of the San Diego post of the American Legion.

Mr. Childs' experience as an engineer has been extensive and varied. Among the federal projects with which he was associated in an engineering capacity after graduating from the school of engineering at the University of California was the construction of the Gunnison tunnel in Colorado and similar undertakings in Idaho and Arizona. He was assistant engineer of San Diego for many years, resigning that position to join the army at the outbreak of the World War as a captain of engineers.

It is in his work as county surveyor, however, that Mr. Childs takes justifiable pride. Although the duties of his office have increased considerably within the last few years he has carried out this increased work efficiently and economically. His friends assert that if there is any public official worthy of the support of the voters, it is Mr. Childs, and they express the hope he will be re-elected by a substantial majority.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

Commenting on the rural schools of California Dr. Raymond Asa Kent, noted Illinois educator, and member of the University of California Summer session faculty says: "They have evidently been developed on the theory that people in rural sections have as much right to a good education as those in cities. The financial system under which your rural schools operate is noteworthy; the tax burden is distributed between the community and the state. The development of the union high school system has made possible a very high type of secondary education in rural communities."

W. C. Purdy, federal officer, is spending about ten days in Chico to follow up research work undertaken in the rice fields six years ago under the auspices of the United States Public Health Service, to determine facts regarding the growth of malarial and other species of mosquito. Purdy discovered that in one rice field near Nelson, mosquitoes did not breed and that in that particular field a certain kind of algae or water scum grew. This algae was found in none of the other fields and the kinds of algae found growing in the other fields were not found in the mosquito-free field.

An interesting part of the July 4th celebration of Johnsville, Plumas county, was a flag flung to the breeze by George S. Redstreake, postmaster, that first was unfurled in Philadelphia July 4th, 1876, during the Centennial Fair and celebration. The flag, since constantly in the possession of Mr. Redstreake, has thirty-seven stars upon the field, and is in excellent condition. It is one of Redstreake's treasured keepsakes and is unfurled only upon the birth date of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

The early history of Ukiah came to light recently when the corner stones of two Methodist churches were opened. Old relics, newspapers and photographs of forty-four years ago were brought to light all in a good state of preservation. The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, erected a building in 1882 and the Methodist Episcopal Church a building in 1885. These congregations have united in the past year. The buildings are being razed and one new $50,000 building will be erected for the united congregation.

Dr. B. L. Clark of the University of California Museum of Paleontology is spending three weeks studying foraminifera at the Scripps Institution of Oceanography at La Jolla. The foraminifera are minute shell fish which lived millions of years ago, and which are now to be found in fossilized form in old rocks. Their presence is of great importance to oil prospectors, as it indicates strata of the earth of the age in which oil is most likely to be found.

Almost definite assurance that Sacramento will soon be given a splendid waterway to the sea was voiced by Congressman Charles F. Curry, on his arrival at Sacramento, when he declared that the rivers and harbors bill, which recently passed the house, and which carries appropriations for deepening the Sacramento and San Joaquin river channels, is virtually certain to be reported on favorably by a senate committee and will probably pass the senate.

Scenes of the Golden West when it was young were being reproduced with startling reality in hotels and saloons in Jackson recently, when Colonel Sam I. Johnson's flying squad of eighteen federal prohibition officers swooped down on the mining center and arrested thirteen men and two women, seized a large quantity of brandy, wine and gin and collected $4,000 in fines before the city was left in darkness and quiet.

A. J. Elliott, director of the livestock division of the Tulare County Fair, announces substantial increases in the premiums and in the number of classifications of the horse division. Particular interest is being paid to the saddle horse and Shetland pony divisions this year. The draft and mule divisions are expected to be filled if the interest shown brings the expected results.

More than 100 persons, ranging from kindergarten children to elderly people, have learned to swim at the school conducted at Memorial Park at Grass Valley by Don Park, an instructor sent by the American Red Cross. Starr Plunge, at the park, has been thronged each day since it started the various classes having regular schedule with ample time given to the juveniles.

The H. P. DeWitt Vineyard in the Radnor district, Kern County, has been sold to George Haines, Los Angeles business man, for a sum reported to be $31,250. The DeWitt property is reputed to be one of the best producers in the district, and three tons per acre of raisins are expected this season.

At the meeting held recently of the board of directors of the Nevada Irrigation District, a resolution was adopted offering free to anyone living in the district, timber now being cut at Lake Bowman to make way for the increased reservoir. Much of the timber is cedar and suitable for fence posts and other farm uses.

An effort is being made by E. E. David, secretary-manager of the Lodi District Chamber of Commerce to have grape growers use the general label on their choicest grapes in an effort to increase a demand for that grade of fruit.

The 700,000 young trout at the Ukiah Fish hatchery at Ukiah, will soon be planted in the streams in the northern part of the state.

Building permits at Watsonville for the month of June amounted to $34,650, according to a report filed with the city board of aldermen.

A small army of grasshoppers has entered Gerber and is attacking gardens at many of the homes. Flower gardens have been particularly attacked.

Workmen have been engaged at Delano for several days improving the office of the telephone company and making improvements in the mechanism and service.

The cotton farmers of Wasco, McFarland and Shafter have formed a growers' marketing corporation and will market their cotton through a co-operative plan.

Plans are being prepared by architects for a one-story concrete class C memorial building for Butte County. It will be erected at Chico and will cost about $80,000.

Construction has been started on a class A hotel to be erected on the site of the old Sentinel Hotel at Kennyville, Yosemite Valley, for the Yosemite Park and Curry Company.

The Los Molinos Fruit Festival will be held on August 6 and 7, instead of a week later as originally planned. The early ripening of the fruit has necessitated the change in date.

Plans have been completed for a one-story frame and stucco primary school building. It will be at Gilroy, Santa Clara County. The improvement will cost about $35,000.

Plans for the largest Tehama County Fair at Red Bluff yet held have been tentatively approved by the committee in charge. The fair will be held September 16 to 18 inclusive.

Building permits totaling 83,694 and involving $261,043,391 in building costs were issued during the first half of 1926 in ninety-five major cities comprised in the Pacific Coast section.

Showing a gain of $167,854 in valuation of the entire county and an increase of $92,226 in the city of Vallejo, last year, the tax roll of Solano County for 1926 was filed by Assessor E. E. Long.

A survey of the feasibility of contrasting a $15,000,000 dam near Isabella on the Kern River as a unit of the big Kern River water storage district will be completed by engineers before long, it is announced.

Publicity for Sutter County is being given by the Southern Pacific Company. Thirty thousand specially illustrated dining car menus depicting the county's importance have been prepared and distributed for use on the company's limited trains plying between Chicago, New Orleans and Pacific Coast points.

When the annual membership campaign is completed it is believed that the Tulare County Farm Bureau will show a roster of 1800 names. This campaign was opened shortly after the first of the year, but was not stressed in some farm bureau centers. Just now the various centers are bent on finishing the task.

Ben Blow, field secretary of the National Highway Association, and vice president of the Victory Highway organization, conferred with the directors of the Kern County Farm Bureau at Bakersfield as to highway plans. He said he intended to give a series of addresses before farm center organizations in this county, and talk upon his hobby, Highways.

Although registration day at the University of California is August 13, the women of the senior and junior classes are making plans to welcome new freshman girls. Letters have been sent to all freshman from the "big sisters" and when they arrive in Berkeley they will find one of the older girls ready to help them through the mazes of registration.

The Pacific Gas and Electric Company has a crew at work installing a new power line into the Live Oak section from the eastward, crossing the Feather River east of town at the site of the proposed new bridge to connect District No. Ten with Live Oak. Added power has become necessary at Live Oak because of the rapid development.

Suffering from a broken left arm and a deep head gash, Mrs. John Giardi of Sonoma, is in the Sonora hospital undergoing treatment as the result of a mysterious explosion of her stove. The stove, which had not been used for some time, exploded shortly after she ignited a fire in it. It is believed that a rodent had dragged a stick of powder beneath the oven pan.

If present plans are carried out, the San Felipe Valley to the northeast of Julian will be irrigated. Land owners there have applied for a permit to divert 33,000 acre-feet from San Felipe creek for storage near Banner where a dam to cost around $300,000 is proposed. The impounded water will come from the Volean Mountains where there is an annual rainfall running as high as forty inches.

Pelicans do not destroy trout, according to the latest scientific evidence gathered by E. Raymond Hall of the University of California Museum of Vertebrate Zoology who has just completed an examination of the pelican's food habits at the instigation of the Bureau of Biological Survey of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. His survey extended over two season at Pyramid Lake, Nevada, the largest White Pelican colony in the United States. It conclusively demonstrates that, pelicans live on surface fish, and are not harmful to trout as sportsmen have claimed.

Beauty Always Within Reach of Small Town

Several Kansas towns are feeling the urge of spring in a new-born desire to be beautiful. In fairness to Kansas it should be said that several Kansas towns are already pleasant to look upon and visit. But there is more to the urge than that, and something the Emporia Gazette said recently on the subject ought to set other towns in other states to thinking about themselves.

"We can be nice, decent, agricultural towns, with each town having some small industry, some specialty in schools or local development like oil or coal and the products of the soil. But big plants—no! We are doomed by our geography to be small towns. Then why not be beautiful towns? Why not get the best out of our towns, and our lives? Why not apple blossoms in Arkansas City, roses in Eldorado, cannas in Fredonia, redbuds in Emporia? Surely if Japan can grow famous over the world for beauty of its cherry blossoms, we can make something out of the beauty that lies in our hands."

There is more to being a popular and thriving town than having the largest population or the biggest manufacturing plants or the most money. And the sooner a lot of small towns all over the country realize this, the sooner they will begin to create charm and distinction for themselves.

Even the towns that are already beautiful have something to do in maintaining their high standard. And the others should start right in making the most out of the beauty that lies in their hands.—Kokomo (Ind.) Dispatch.

Distinction Given to Grounds by Shrubbery

Shrubbery about a dwelling is of equal, if not greater, importance than trees. For, while trees give shade and add to the general attractiveness of a place, shrubbery "ties the house to the ground," as it has been expressed; outlines boundaries and provides that seclusion now considered both desirable and necessary.

In small cities and suburban towns, where the custom often prevails of having the front yards in a block like one big lawn, it might break the general scheme to put in a front hedge, but shrubbery should be so massed in foundation planting as to single out that house as beautiful beyond all the others left unplanted, regardless of size or cost. And, where the back yards also have been thrown into one, or separated by almost invisible wire fences, that shrubbery following the house foundation could be carried around to the rear and extended onto the lawn far enough to make a secluded outdoor room.

Taller shrubs, with a few of the smaller trees, might be used in executing this idea without interfering with the whole block scheme, but beautifying the whole as seen from a distance.

Plant for Permanence

Above all things I would urge that permanent planting, like trees and shrubs and vines, be used. They are the background of any gardening, anywhere, and old-fashioned plants are always happy looking.

Even people who rent a house should feel enough interest in making the city itself beautiful to plant one tree or shrub or vine each season. It costs so little and they could get such fun out of only one year of watching it grow and if they stayed longer than a year they would find that nothing gives you such a feeling of home as watching something you have planted grow each year into greater beauty.—Chicago Post.

City's Growth

George B. Ford, speaking to 2,000 delegates at the national chamber of commerce meeting in Washington, asked why cities grow and then sought to answer his own question. He mentioned four causes of growth—natural advantage of position, nearness to raw materials, nearness to market and presence of skill derived from experience. All these are causes for industrial development, he explained, and "produce population growth only because industrial development leads to population growth. . . . Cities grow because of industrial activity."

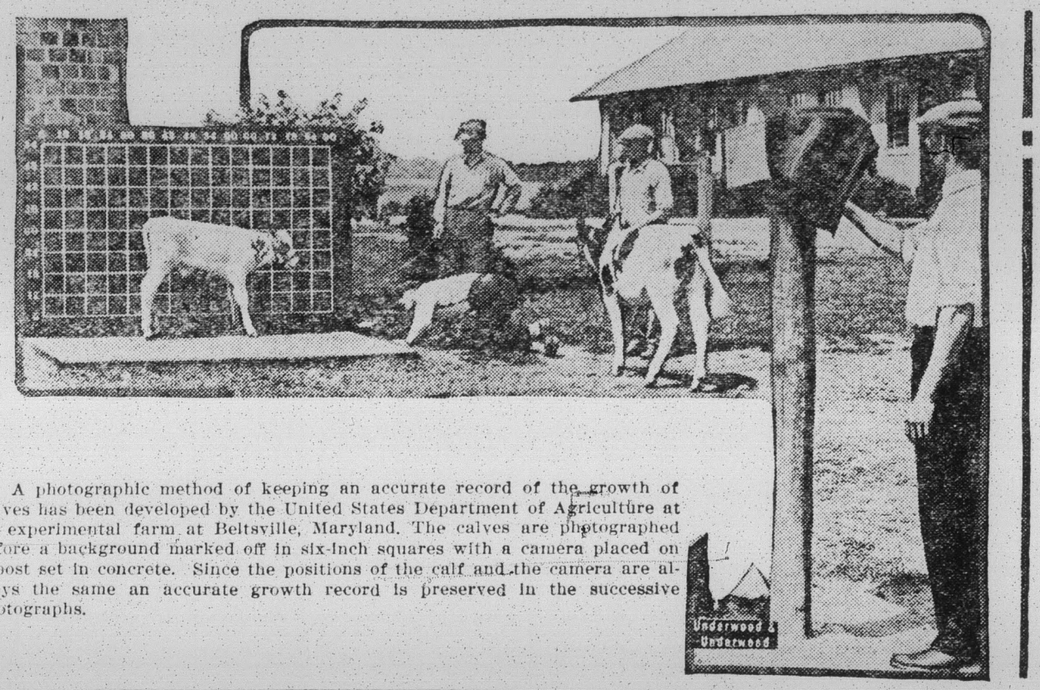
Flowers in City Yards

A novel suggestion of great importance concerns the abandonment of grass in close-in city yards, and the use of paved areas, surrounded by beds in which plants are grown. The fact that plants and many flowers can be grown successfully under conditions where lawns will fail is not generally known. In cultivated beds it is relatively easy to supply water and renew plant foods; and species of plants may be selected which best endure city conditions.

Style Used in Building

English architecture is particularly adaptable to a house set close to the street, the editor of the Home Designer and Garden Beautiful points out; for the roof recedes away from the eye, thereby enhancing the appearance of the building by apparently reducing the height

Camera Used in Measuring Growth of Calves



A photographic method of keeping an accurate record of the growth of calves has been developed by the United States Department of Agriculture at its experimental farm at Beltsville, Maryland. The calves are photographed before a background marked off in six-inch squares with a camera placed on a post set in concrete. Since the positions of the calf and the camera are always the same an accurate growth record is preserved in the successive photographs.

HELPING WITH HER THINGS

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WHEN are men old? Well, I would say
Not when their hair begins to gray,
Not even when their step is slow,
But when so very old they grow
They are too feeble anymore
To do the things they did before—
Like one who now no longer springs
To help his wife on with her things.

Man's age may very often be
A matter of his memory.
He gets forgetful, and we say,
Yes, even when not even gray,
"He's getting old; he can't recall
The things he used to do at all."
No more her coat and hat he brings
Or helps his wife on with her things

We all grow gray—the women, too—
But not so fast the woman who
Has still a man who keeps her young—
Not by some flattery of tongue
But by the little kindly deeds
A woman's heart forever needs.
Ah, I am sure the woman sings
Whose husband helps her with her things.

The man who wants to keep himself
From gathering dust upon the shelf,
The man who wants to keep his wife
Still looking on and up at life,
I'm sure could find no better way
To keep their hearts from growing gray,
To keep their hearts forever spring's,
Than—well, to help her with her things.

SPORT SHOES IMPORTANT; DIGNIFIED TAILORED HATS

NOW that the simple jumper frock in white or light-colored crepe, worn with an equally simple hat, leads the procession of chic pastime clothes, women may indulge a growing taste for fanciful shoes. This simplicity of frock and headwear allows them to place emphasis on shoes, and this is what they are doing. Of course the one-strap slipper, of white or colored kid skin, will pass without criticism in the company of sports clothes, but there are any number of handsome shoes, made of kid skin in combination with other leathers, that will make a striking finish for the sports costume.

The lion and the lamb that lie down together have nothing on the kid when it comes to choosing strange company. Kid skin gambols with lizard, snake and alligator in sports and dressy shoes and masquerades, with strange markings and many colors, as reptilian. Its unequaled pliability and strength keep it first in demand; nothing else is so comfortable. For afternoon and evening, kid slippers are shown in pink, blue green, parchment, navy and sauterne, as well as in the usual tan, gray and brown shades. It is often combined with lizard, and shoes of kid and lizard are especially effective in gray, tan or white. The combination of brown and white is a favorite for sports wear and a fine example is shown here of the brown and parchment shade. Alligator skin and parchment kid make the handsome one-strap slippers at the bottom of the picture. Above these a white kid slipper, in the sandal style, is shown. It is trimmed with three rows of perforations. Single-strap slippers are worn with the clever sports frock pictured. This is made of white radium silk with appliqué of blue radium silk for trimming.

Some Sports Shoes.

Midsummer has brought out the sleeveless flannel suits for tennis, golf and street wear. The skirts have a group of plaits at the front, the jackets are double breasted and belted across the back. Practical square pockets are set each side at the front and white pearl buttons provide the trimming feature.

The mood of fashion in the matter of hats has undergone a change. Once again tailored modes of distinction find themselves making the strongest appeal to those women of discrimination who set the pace in fashions. This demand for fine tailored hats will put the art of the milliner to its severest test; for it takes the utmost in craftsmanship to turn out successful tailored things, either in hats or garments.

Here is a group of five beautiful tailored hats that give some idea of the variety of shapes and materials used and the trend of styles. It leads off with a wide-brimmed model of fine milan in black with a clever cut-out trim of long felt petals in sand color. This is mounted on the crown with a very handsome black pin studded with rhinestones. These wide-brimmed milans and similar shapes in hair braid, sometimes with the simplest of ribbon trims, have such a record of success that wide-brimmed felts and velvets are likely to follow them when summer is gone. At the left is a shape of soft straw braid with a cleverly creased crown and trimming of velvet ribbon in two colors. Note that the brim is not narrowed at the back—which shows an increasing regard for brims. Their careers are not cut short anywhere. Below this is a sportish model made of apple-green bangkok and trimmed with folds of velvet about the crown in two colors—green and burgundy. It has a chou of velvet at the back and looks simple enough, but no amateur can manage it. At the right is a handsome black satin hat in a new shape. A coronet of finely plaited ribbon encircles it, pierced by a handsome jet pin. It is a model of much dignity, but there is nothing tame about it. The small milan shape that finishes the group shows clever management of double-faced ribbon, faille on one side and satin on the other, in two shades. This is folded in such a way as to show the two surfaces and to change the contour of the shape a little. The rhinestone pin at the front has a double head.

THE RACING CLOCK

"Tick-Tock, Tick-Tock," said the Twins and the old clock said:

"Dear Me."

"I'm not going to stop for them! The very idea. The very idea indeed.

"Just because they have put off doing things until late I'm not going to hold back for them.

"Now they are grumbling because every time they look at me I've gone on so much further ahead.

"But that is right. I do as I should do. And I do it cheerfully.

"They wait and put off and then they wish I'd hold back for them.

"It's not only the children, dear me, no. Of course the children will put off their lessons until they hardly have time to study them and then they blame me and say:

"'Oh, that mean old clock. I won't get this learned in time and I'll get scolded tomorrow.'

"That is the way they talk.

"But there are the mothers, too. They will say:

"'I should have got at this basket of stockings before, but dear me, I didn't realize it was so late. I do wish that clock would not race ahead so quickly.'

"I'm not racing any more than usual, but they think so because they are behind themselves and think they can do things in half the time they really know very well it will take.

"Then there are people who do not start getting their dinner ready in time and they blame me, or members of my family.

"Of course I will admit that I do go steadily on—with regular windings, to be sure.

"And there is something tremendous about the amount of time that goes by steadily moment after moment, hour after hour.

"It is enough to make people fuss and fume when they realize that they are behind time and that they are trying to make it up.

"But still that is no excuse. The clock is a stern one. He allows no special permissions to anyone.

"But mostly I hate to see people abuse me. By that I mean I can't bear to see people do things with my moments and hours that they are going to spend more moments and hours feeling sorry for later on.

"Now the other day a little girl picked enough radishes from the garden for a nice dish of radishes for the family.

"Well, there hadn't been a crop of radishes in quite a little time and she was so pleased at seeing them that she just couldn't seem to be able to resist them.

"She ate every radish herself.

"Well, ever since then she has been spending time feeling so ashamed of herself.

"No one knew there were enough radishes ready for the table. No one has known what she did.

"But she feels just as bad as she can feel. She feels that it was so dreadful to let her love of radishes get the better of her unselfishness.

"It doesn't matter that no one knows it and that no one can scold her.

"She has scolded herself many times.

"That is what I call such a waste of my good moments—wasting them in selfishness and in regrets.

She Ate Every Radish.

"Then there was a parent the other day who was so cross and punished a child for no reason at all except that the parent was tired.

"The parent still, deep in her heart, feels so sorry for that. It's only a little thing but she still worries about it.

"Those are the kinds of moments the old clock calls wasted ones. Moments into which selfishness and unhappiness are allowed to creep when they needn't have been permitted to come in at all."

The "Kid" Is Clever

A motoring party came to a swiftly flowing river and were startled to see an infant seated on a stump overhanging the rushing water, while a small boy, evidently the baby's brother, played some distance away. A lady in the party called the boy severely to account for his negligence.

"Aw, he can't fall in," answered the youngster. "I nailed his shirt to the stump."

Still Studying Grammar

"Richard," asked the teacher, suddenly, "have you learned your history lesson?"

"No'm," answered the idle boy, slowly, "I ain't had no time for nothing but my grammar lesson yet."

WHEN I WAS TWENTY-ONE

BY JOSEPH KAYE

AT 21—Achmed Abdullah Set About Founding a British-Moslem Empire.

"AT TWENTY-ONE I wanted to succeed, very brilliantly, in my career, that of an army officer; I wanted to be instrumental in founding a Pan-Islamic league to work in close harmony with the British empire and, in the course of the centuries, to bring this same empire, civilizationally and religiously, completely under the sway of Islam, I wanted to explore certain uncharted regions in southwestern and central Africa with the intention of getting a jump ahead of the French and counteracting their political influence in Africa. I wanted, later on, to persuade the British-Indian government to send me as a political free-lance agent to central Asia, there to stir up trouble against the Russians and pave the way throughout Turkestan and Mongolia, for this gorgeous British-Moslem dream empire of mine.

"Being very young, I suffered furthermore from less weighty ambitions. I wanted to win the derby with a snow-white little Arab filly that I was training and I wanted to be socially well known in every European capital, to have people point me out in restaurants, streets and salons, with the single telling, if ungrammatical, comment:

"'That's him!'

"But aside from all that, at twenty-one I was a junior subaltern in the British-Indian army, Sam Browne's Horses, but serving temporarily in the Sudan, with the First Sudanese camel corps. Too, I was very busy studying the Tibetan language, and Tibetan customs and religion, as, later in the year, I was to accompany the Younghusband expedition to Tibet and Lhassa, the Forbidden City."—Achmed Abdullah.

TODAY: Alas for Napoleonic ambitions! Captain Achmed Abdullah, instead of being the founder and prime ornament of a Moslem empire, is merely the writer of novels and short stories, living in Greenwich village, New York. But his present comparatively lowly labors pay much better; they bring him many paragraphs in "Who's Who," a few varieties of bank books, and he requires no squad of secret service men to guard his life, but walks the streets of the Village a free man.

Mother's Cook Book

There is no mystery about happiness whatever. Put in the right ingredients and it must come out.

Whoso will observe the wonderful providence of God shall have wonderful providences to observe.

CAKE-MAKING AND BAKING

INEXPERIENCED cooks do not value the process of baking. The best of mixed and prepared cakes will be ruined if not properly baked.

First of all have all the materials for making the cake ready at hand before beginning to put things together, as often we find a lack of something, which changes the plans.

The time was when much creaming of butter and stirring of sugar was thought to be the only way to make a butter cake; but busy days teach us short methods.

The shortening, if softened, not melted, will mix with the sugar in a very short time, while hot water or milk (if hurried for time) is used; then with a good beating add the eggs one at a time, beating well after each addition.

Plain Cake.

Three tablespoonfuls of softened butter, one cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of milk, two eggs, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one and three-quarters cupfuls of sifted flour. Add flavoring and bake in a hot oven. After greasing cake tins, dust with flour; this will help to remove the cake without breaking. The cake that is baked with as little flour as will hold it up makes a much more tender and delicate cake. Have the oven very hot for layer cake and bake from ten to twelve minutes. For a loaf cake forty minutes or more is needed. Divide the time into quarters for baking; the first quarter, or ten minutes, it should begin to rise; the second quarter it should finish rising and begin to brown; the third quarter it should finish browning and begin to shrink from the pan; the last quarter finishes the baking. If a cake crackles as it is taken from the oven that shows that it is still cooking and not entirely done. Put it back for a few minutes.

When baking a sheet or loaf, or in fact any shaped cakes, heap the cake dough around the edges as it goes into the oven, as all cakes have a tendency to hump up in the center, and a level cake is more apt to result.

Beat cake before the egg whites are added, then fold them in, mixing lightly to keep in all the air. This is in regard to cakes where the egg whites and yolks are separately beaten.

FOR THE GOOSE—

SOME people pride themselves on havin' a sense of humor when all they got is a trick of rememberin' jokes and a knack of tellin' 'em.

Advice to brides: Train him early to help with the housework. Remember, new grooms sweep clean.

In the land of the black-eyed, the blue-eyed is a queen.

FOR THE GANDER—

It don't pay to be so cautious that you keep your mitts on even when you're holdin' hands.

A woman might like the feelin' of bein' out with a guy that tips a head waiter ten dollars. But she'll prefer the feelin' of four nice pairs of gloves.

Gettin' over injuries ain't necessarily a sign of weakness. It might only indicate a good, healthy liver.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

A WELL-ORDERED DAY

TO BEGIN in the early morning to arrange your mind for the orderly doing of your routine work in a way which shall assure avoidance of all unnecessary friction, or waste of energy you have stored up during sleep, is a pretty sure indication that you are heading for a tranquil and successful day.

There is always a new-born power in high resolve. This force plays a great role in the lives of those who are conscious of its presence.

Discordant notes, jarring flare-ups of temper and nervous flurries, scamper hastily to cover on the approach of men and women whose hearts are attuned to the music of the spheres, which is nothing more nor less than being in sweet accord with duty.

To see ourselves as others see us, is trying on our eyes and vexing to our souls.

If we can do this in the drear gray of morning, it should not be charged against us that we are deficient in the qualities that go to make a well-ordered life.

But how many of our kind can do this?

How many of us in a spirit of calm determination can put aside pride and egotism, and stick to the high purpose until we actually bubble over with happiness which we are eager to share with others?

A well-ordered day opens the way for others of the same sort.

A constant repetition of similar days would in a little while lighten all forms of irksome labor, remove causes for discord, and draw humans together in a closer bond of friendship and a more open communication.

If you had an unhappy experience yesterday, see that nothing shall happen to disturb your serenity today.

While sipping your coffee at the breakfast table, get a grip on yourself and plan for improvement.

Acquit yourself in a manner which shall make your employers or associates notice the change that has come over you, and the orderly fashion in which you approach your work.

Hold to your purpose without a frown or a curl of the lips, and impart your spirit to others.

In a short time you will find yourself going at a new speed, rising steadily as you go and in sweet harmony with duty and with your fellow beings.

A MAN OF COURAGE

For District Attorney

Only 10 per cent of those guilty of major crimes in America are caught. Only one-quarter of this 10 per cent are punished.

How many of these criminals went scot free because the prosecuting authorities did not back up the arresting authorities, or through inefficiency, pull or corruption, failed to push the cases?

According to the 1924 San Diego Grand Jury, the district attorney's office has failed to co-operate with the other agencies of justice in the county, and has been disinclined to prosecute cases arising outside of that office.

Is this the attitude a district attorney should show in the face of a rising crime wave?

NOTE—THE DISTRICT ATTORNEY WILL BE ELECTED AT THE PRIMARY, AUGUST 31st.

From Where It Is To Where It Isn't

THAT IS all that "superpower" means. Let's see why.

Any power company's supply of electricity varies from year to year. Water conditions are different. Demands for power change from many causes.

No matter how bad the shortage of power in one part of California, there is usually a surplus in another section. The common sense remedy is to take it from where there is too much to the place where there is not enough.

That is "superpower" and California companies have been doing it for years but just didn't coin a catchy name for it. They called it "inter-connection of transmission systems."

But they are interconnected from Mexico to Oregon and that is why San Diego Consolidated Gas & Electric Company has the entire power supply of this and neighbor states to call on in time of need.

This helps to make electricity cheaper now than it was in 1913 while the cost of living is 65 per cent greater.

Our commercial men will advise you how to profit by California "superpower."

BALBOA THEATER

Honest and sincere, but bigoted and intolerant, narrow-minded and Puritanical—a typical reformer, an unpaid moral policeman, is the description of Noah Berry, who enacts the role of Henry Gilbert, the father, in "Padlocked," coming to Balboa Theatre for one week starting Friday.

On the other hand we have the girl, Lois Moran, who plays the role of Edith Gilbert, the daughter, who is a normal modernday American girl—sweet, wholesome, captivatingly pretty—a scintillating mixture of elfin wistfulness and girlish winsomeness.

Miss Moran and Noah Berry are ably supported by Louise Dresser, Helen Jerome Eddy, Douglas Fairbanks Jr., and others.

Brimming over with pep and laugh provoking stunts, the one and only Neil Kelly returns to Balboa Theatre for an indefinite engagement.

Albert MacGillivray, announced as "The Caruso of the Air," has a tenor voice of genuine merit. Mr Macgillivray is now in his 152nd week with Fanchon and Marco productions, and his return engagement to Balboa Theatre is a pleasing event.

Floyd Rathburn, is a celebrated English pantomist, who furnishes considerable comedy in an eccentric dance and some clever soft shoe work.

Gwendolyn Evans and her Sunkist Beauties present a novelty song and dance numbers, including "How Many Times," an original creation by Fanchon and Marco. George Stolberg and his Greater Band are featured in the various numbers of the stage presentations.

CABRILLO THEATER

Long reputed as the most fearless of screen actresses, Anna Q. Nilsson sets up a record for daring in her new picture, "Miss Nobody", a First National release, coming Saturday to Cabrillo Theatre.

Walter Pidgeon, a recruit of the year from the musical stage, makes his appearance in this film opposite Miss Nilsson. Others featured in the cast are Louise Fazenda, Arthur Stone, Mitchell Lewis and Clyde Cook.

Raymond Godden will play a group of novelty slide selections. Kinograms and a Pathe comedy "Gooseland," furnish additional entertainment.

Diagram of a Simply Constructed Short-Wave Receiver That Can Pick up Programs Under 150 Meters.

By LEO HUGO KRUGER,
In the Chicago Evening Post.

If you haven't been listening to KDKA regularly (I mean by direct broadcast) then you are missing something. Of course a lot of folks have heard about short waves, but very few have ever listened to a program broadcast on short waves. (I mean direct, not rebroadcast.) KDKA has been offering some real programs the last few months, and if you are the kind of fan that likes to reach out for DX every night and you are willing to build a radio set just to be able to hear one DX station any time it is on the air, and also without the customary static read on.

All that is necessary is to construct a two-tube set, which should not cost more than $15. The diagram clearly explains the different connections. The main parts are the B.-T. old-style short wave tuner and the .00014 Karras straight-line frequency condenser. The rest can be made up from odds in the old junk box.

Ranges From 50 to 150 Meters.

Stations should come around 25 or 30, using the Karras condenser (an old-style .00025 condenser can be used), but KDKA comes in close to the end of the dial, somewhere between 4 and 10.

After the set works well another stage may be added. But two tubes should be sufficient to put KDKA on the loud speaker. The set has a range for 50 to 150 meters.

Between 50 and 75 there is a lot of code, this is the amateurs' own 80-meter band, and when one knows the code it is nothing new when you should happen to hear one amateur talking to another 7,000 miles away.

Long Aerial Not Essential.

One more word about the set: A long aerial is not essential. I've picked up KDKA without either aerial or ground, but I recommend for the best all-around use about 65 feet. If your aerial is too long you might hear harmonics from local stations, but by putting a .00025 fixed condenser in series with the aerial the harmonics should become very weak.

Also, if the loud speaker or phone tips are reversed a steady ticking will be heard.

The list of parts needed:

One short-wave tuner, B.-T. old style.

One .00014 straight line frequency condenser.

One .00025 fixed condenser.

One grid leak.

Two 25-ohm rheostats (amperite may be substituted in last stage).

One .001 fixed condenser.

One 4-to-1 ratio, or higher, audio transformer.

One single-circuit jack.

Two 201A UV or UX tubes.

Two sockets.

The panel may be 7 by 14 inches and the baseboard should be of practically the same measurements.

How Condenser, Choke Circuit Helps Music

Loud speaker reproduction may often be improved by introducing a choke coil and high-capacity condenser in the output circuit of the radio receiver.

The method of connecting is quite simple. The choke coil, which should have an inductance value between 50 and 100 henrys, is connected across the output terminals of the receiving set. One terminal of the loud speaker is connected to a terminal of the choke. The other connection to the speaker connects to one side of the high-capacity condenser, which should have a value of four microfarads. The second terminal of the condenser connects to the other connection to the choke coil. In reality, the condenser and loud speaker are connected in series with each other and in parallel with the choke coil.

A in the diagram shows the usual method of connecting the loud speaker. B shows the loud speaker connected in the circuit, using a condenser choke coil output system.

In addition to improving the quality of reproduction, such a device facilitates the use of higher plate voltage on the plates of the audio-frequency amplifier tubes.

Its purpose is to allow the direct current applied to the plates to pass through the choke coil, and the alternating current or modulated signals to pass through the loud speaker. Incidentally, this arrangement will insure against burning out of the loud speaker.

The choke coil used should be capable of passing a current of at least thirty milliamperes.

Hints on Testing of Wet and Dry Batteries

Never test a "B" battery with an ammeter. You may ruin the ammeter and you will certainly shorten the life of the battery by subjecting it to so heavy a current output. Placing an ammeter across a battery is the same as short-circuiting it with a wire. Use a voltmeter.

To test dry cells you may use an ammeter for just an instant. The cell should show at least 25 amperes if it's in good shape. The voltmeter should show full 1½ volts, even if the battery be badly shelf-worn. Never use the ammeter if you can help it and then only for a fraction of a second, and use it only on large dry cells meant for "A" battery work.

For the storage battery, the only test of any real value is that made by a hydrometer. It shows the gravity of the liquid (electrolyte) and tells the exact point between "full charge" and "dead battery."

Only a "high resistance" voltmeter is useful to test the voltage at which vacuum tubes are lighted.

Fixed Resistance and Condensers Aid Quality

With certain audio amplifying transformers the connection across the secondaries of fixed resistors of about 250,000 or 500,000 ohms value works wonders in clarifying reception in general and in reducing the exaggeration of high notes. Fixed condensers of .0005 or .001 mfd. in the same position have a similar effect, while combinations of condensers and resistors often turn a hitherto poor amplifier into a fairly acceptable one.

Resistance and condensers so employed are not infallible cures for distortion due to bad amplifier construction or design, but in many cases they bring about enough improvement to warrant their cost and installation.

Improve Regeneration

A choke coil having about 120 turns wound on a one-inch diameter tube and connected in series with the plate circuit of a regenerative receiver often will make the set oscillate more easily and steadily.

Recharge Dry Cell

To recharge a dry cell, bore two holes one-fourth inch in diameter and three inches deep on opposite sides of the center connection. Then fill the holes with cider vinegar and plug up with paraffin.

Pearls "Made to Order"

In the National museum in Washington are some specimens of shells of a huge, pearl fresh-water mussel at home in those countries, on the inside of which are numerous little images of Buddha, all done in pearl. We are told that these are sold to or bestowed upon pilgrims visiting certain sacred shrines as miraculous manifestations of that great teacher, and that these gems are highly valued by the people of the Orient. These little images were really the forerunners of our cultural pearls, the term "cultural pearls" being the trade name for the man-induced, or artificially grown pearls.—Nature Magazine.

WOMAN CONQUERS FEARS

Husband Delighted and Home Happier

St. Paul, Minn.—"Here I a little advice I would like to have you put in the papers," Mrs. Jack Lorberter of 704 Dellwood Place wrote to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company. "If young women want to keep their health and strength for the next thirty years of their lives, it is best to start in right now and take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have tried the Compound myself and received fine results from its use." In describing her condition before taking the Compound, she writes, "I was afraid in my own house in broad daylight, I used to lock the doors and pull down the shades so that nobody could see me." One day a booklet advertising the Vegetable Compound was left on her porch and she read it through. In so doing, she found a letter from a woman whose condition was similar to her own. "I bought Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound," Mrs. Lorberter continued, "and have had fine results. My condition made me a burden to my husband. Now I ask him, "How is housekeeping?" and he says, "It is just like being in Heaven!" Are you on the Sunlit Road to Better Health?

Fearful ceremonies were connected with entry into the Secret Society of the Double Cross in Hungary, an order of which George Hir, Hungarian deputy, was once a prominent member, says a writer for the Philadelphia Public Ledger. Members had to drink their own blood to seal the entry to the association and swear to oaths which are said to have meant innumerable murders.

A REAL ESTATE TANGLE

By JEREMY MAITLAND

(© by W. G. Chapman.)

MISS MILLIE was dead, and all that was mortal of her had been laid away in the village churchyard. She had been a lonely old woman, and as the years went by her loneliness had increased. "Cranky," the people called her. Her only companion had been Dorothy, surnamed Vincent on the day, 20 years before, when Miss Millie took her from the foundling asylum in Ralston, 25 miles away. Now Dorothy was left alone, mistress of the little cottage in Winborough.

Dorothy vividly recalled the day of her adoption, though she was only five at the time. Miss Millie Vincent had appeared with the head of the institution in front of the girls. Poor little orphaned creatures, trained so carefully for domestic service! Even at the most tender age, they knew their forlorn condition, and each one dreamed of the rich lady who was to adopt her and treat her as a daughter.

"Stand up, Milly!" said the superintendent. "This girl will suit you, I think, Miss Vincent," she added, turning to the middle-aged, crabbed-looking woman.

"Can you do anything, child?" inquired Miss Milly in her high, thin voice.

"I can sew, ma'am," piped the childish treble.

"Mercy! Can you cook a dinner?" asked Miss Milly.

"No, but I'll try, ma'am," said five-years-old.

"I guess they're all equally useless," sighed Miss Millie. "However, I'll take her."

Dorothy cried that night at her hard fate. She had dreamed of a rich mother, who would give her love and shower her with gifts. Dolls, toys, pretty dresses—such had been her dreams. But Dorothy, like most of the inmates, was a foundling, and had been brought to the institution at an age when the world was only a mass of shapeless color and movement toward which she stretched out her baby arms. Her first memories were of the asylum.

Miss Milly did not prove a hard mistress, but she had little love to give the waif. She treated her well enough, but she was always harsh in the presence of strangers. Generally it is the other way round. As Dorothy grew older she became more curious to learn who her mother was. Once, when she was fifteen, she made a journey to the asylum. Miss Miller, the superintendent, did not recognize or remember her, and to all her petitions she turned a deaf ear.

"Except by the wish of the mother, we never give the information you ask for," she answered coldly.

"Won't you write to my mother and tell her how I want to meet her?" inquired Dorothy tearfully.

Miss Miller agreed to do that. But when Dorothy went back she could learn nothing more. And Miss Vincent learned somehow what the girl had done, and scolded her for her ingratitude.

"Haven't I been a mother to you?" she demanded shrilly. "Haven't you a spark of kindly feeling toward them who has saved you from domestic service and given you a home?"

As Dorothy grew older Miss Vincent became kinder, but the crabbed old woman had one peculiarity. She would permit none of the young men of Winborough to call on Dorothy. She explained why, frankly.

"Men are all bad," she said. "They only bring trouble to a girl. You're going to be an old maid, the same as me. Do you understand?"

Yes, Dorothy understood. And so she said good-by to Fred Dane, her one sweetheart. She was accustomed to self-suppression, and after all she could not leave the old woman who had been good to her in her sour fashion. So Fred went away to Ralston, to open law practice there, and soon he was a prosperous man. He had never come back to Winborough.

Miss Vincent had tried to say something to the girl as she lay dying, but the stroke that killed her had come without warning, and the old woman never spoke again. She died two days after the beginning of her last illness.

On the second day after the funeral an elderly man and woman came up the garden path. The man bore a remarkable resemblance to Miss Milly. He stared hard at the girl.

"So you are the young woman that my sister adopted?" he inquired, and his wife gave a prodigious sniff. "Perhaps you've never heard of me? I am your mistress' brother Joel, from Wayneville."

"I didn't know Miss Milly had a brother," faltered Dorothy.

"Well, you'll soon clear out," answered the man. "I understand she left no will. You hain't seen no will, have you?"

"I never heard of one," said Dorothy.

"I thought as much. Then this house and grounds belongs to me. Now show me that old mahogany furniture I've heard of. It ought to be worth a mint of money."

Then for the first time Dorothy understood that the house was not hers. She was to become a waif again, as helpless as when she had first gone there.

But later in the day another arrival came in the shape of a prim maiden lady, even more like Miss Milly, who hammered violently upon the door and, when Milly opened it, burst in unceremoniously and shook her fist in the face of Brother Joel.

"Now ain't that like you, Joel, trying to forestall me," she screamed. "Perhaps you don't recognize Sister Bessie, do you? Thought you and Eliza would get ahead of me, sniffing around Sister Millie's property, didn't you? But there ain't no will and I defy you to lay a finger on this house till I've had my say. Now, young woman, where's that old mahogany furniture?"

Another relation appeared toward nightfall in the shape of a cousin, who groaned drearily to find the others in possession.

"If there ain't no will," she shrilled, "I say cousins has a right to share in the property. If I am only a cousin, at least, I stood by Milly when the rest of you cast her off. I'd have writ her once a year if she'd have answered. But Milly always was stuck up, though Lord only knows she had no call to be."

They departed at nightfall to seek accommodation in the village inn. They wrangled down the street and the sound of their rasping voices only died away to leave the girl's heart desolate. She had grown to love the trim little place; she had made plans for a long life there. She was going to raise chickens, she had intended to grow vegetables and flowers, to brighten her dreary existence with books and music. She felt helpless under this cataclysm.

Early next morning the four were back again, wrangling over the property. Brother Joel wanted the house, his wife wanted the furniture; Sister Bessie insisted on the piano and the dining-room set to begin with. They argued angrily in the parlor, while Cousin Jane wrung her hands and lamented Milly's "stuckupedness."

"Well," said Brother Joel's wife sneeringly, "at any rate we can all agree on one thing. This young woman here hain't no business here, so we can begin by saying good-by to her."

Dorothy could bear it no longer. She ran out of the room and down the garden path, sobbing desperately. She never wanted to enter the house again. She did not see the tall man at the gate until he caught her. Then she gasped in dismay.

"Fred!" she exclaimed.

"Dorothy! What is the matter?"

"They're all in there," wept Dorothy, "fighting over Miss Milly's things, and they've turned me out, and—"

In broken words she managed to give Fred Dane an outline of the situation. Fred Dane laughed comfortably. There was the sound of success and self-confidence in that laugh. Dorothy stole a timid look at him. How big and protecting he seemed. He had become a man during those five years that he had been away.

"Now you come right back with me," he said. "I've got something to say to that crowd." And he caught her arm in his and took her back, right into the parlor again, where the fight was proceeding with such intensity that nobody saw him for quite a minute. Sister Bessie and Brother Joel's wife each had hold of one side of the piano and they were trying to drag it in two separate ways.

"Ladies and gentlemen," began Fred Dane, clearing his throat.

Brother Joel looked up with a snarl. "What, another of them?" he demanded.

"Oh, no. I am just the lawyer who was intrusted with Miss Milly's will," said Fred. "You see, she had a presentiment of her approaching illness and took the trouble to have it witnessed and signed and placed in my care last week."

"Who gets the planner?" shouted Sister Bessie.

"Miss Milly has left everything to her daughter," answered Fred Dane.

There was a moment of horrified silence. Then Sister Bessie shrilled:

"What? That brat still living and come back to trouble us after all these years? I thought it died! What right did she have to have a child of sin? And now we're going to lose the house and the planner just because Milly—"

"Poor Milly!" wept Cousin Jane. "I'd have stood by her if she'd only let me. I didn't cast her off when she was young and beautiful because she slipped. I wrote to her once a year for a whole year, only she was too stuck-up to answer."

"So, let me invite you to leave," said Fred, "because, you see, the house and property, as well as the piano, are already disposed of."

"Oh, I'll leave!" shouted Brother Joel. "But ther ain't no lawyer can skin me out of my property. I'll have the law on you."

"And I'm going to have my planner!" shouted Sister Bessie, as she moved toward the door; and they went out blustering and threatening.

"Dorothy," said Fred, when they were alone, "now that I've come back I'm not going to let you escape me again, though you did dismiss me so cruelly before. I always meant to have you, and now that I've made a little money, do you know what I am going to do? I'm going to buy this house and start a law practice here, and let my partner run the one at Ralston. And I'm going to marry you, and I'm going to sign that contract like this." And he kissed her.

"But, Fred," said Milly, a few minutes later, "who is this daughter? Poor little child! I feel as though I had usurped her place! To think Miss Milly didn't dare acknowledge her! Who is she?"

"Why, you dearest," Fred answered.

Test Parachutes' Value

A new system of testing parachutes has been tried by the army air service. Two parachutes are dropped simultaneously from a plane in flight, allowing a comparison of their action in opening, speed and rate of descent. Parachutes with dummies are mounted on bomb racks under each wing and are released like bombs. Their action can then be checked. Most of the tests have been made at an altitude of 400 feet.

Seek Elusive Elements in Dead Sea Waters

The Dead sea is the latest locale of the search for the two elements still missing from the chemist's periodic table. The high concentration of salts in this body of water caused J. Newton Friend of the Municipal Technical school of Birmingham, England, to consider the possibility of their containing either eka-caesium or eka-iodine, the names assigned to the elusive elements.

Diffractionations of samples of the water were accordingly carried out and the final diffractionation products submitted to X-ray analysis, but unfortunately the spectrum lines that would reveal the presence of either the one or the other failed to show up. Traces of the element strontium, however, were found, the presence of which had never before been recorded in any previous analyses of Dead sea water.—Science Service Bulletin.

Train Wrecked by Buffalo

Railroaders working the 600 miles of lines in the volcanic island of Java often encounter wild animals and in some instances disaster results. While a train was crossing a high bridge, it crashed into a herd of wild water buffaloes. The locomotive toppled into the river and 25 persons were killed. Shortly afterward, near the same bridge, a buffalo charged into a passenger train and derailed the locomotive, killing the engineer and injuring the fireman.

Turkish Woman Honored

Smyrna has the first woman member of a stock exchange in Turkey. The commission directing the Smyrna exchange has elected to membership Fatma Hanoum, already well known as one of the few Turkish women engaged in commercial affairs and prominent in Smyrna as owner of several factories.

GERMS—6,000,000 germs on a single fly, says a noted health officer. Protect your family with Flit.

Flit spray clears your home in a few minutes of disease-bearing flies and mosquitoes. It is clean, safe and easy to use.

Kills All Household Insects

Flit spray also destroys bed bugs, roaches and ants. It searches out the cracks and crevices where they hide and breed, and destroys insects and their eggs. Spray Flit on your garments. Flit kills moths and their larvae which eat holes. Extensive tests showed that Flit spray did not stain the most delicate fabrics.

Flit is the result of exhaustive research by expert entomologists and chemists. It is harmless to mankind. Flit has replaced the old methods because it kills all the insects—and does it quickly.

Hospitals on Increase

New hospitals have been established in the United States at the rate of 100 a year since 1920, according to a report of the American Medical association. Sixty per cent of all the physicians in the United States have affiliation with hospitals.

SAFETY

There is no factor of safety, from double thick genuine plate glass to the solidarity of the roof, which escapes the painstaking investigation of Fisher inspectors.

Quality above all else, is the creed of Fisher craftsmanship.

And Fisher has always regarded the safety and comfort of those who ride in Fisher Bodies the surest proof of Fisher quality.

Along the Concrete

Everywhere, along the concrete, cars are rolling, filled with camping equipment and happy, lucky people intent on getting the most out of God's great out-of-doors. On the running board are strapped three cans—one filled with gasoline, another with water and the third holds oil—that is on the cars of travel-wise drivers.

A savings account in the Southern Trust and Commerce Bank is like unto those three cans strapped onto the running board. It may save you trudging back many miles for financial gasoline.

As fresh water relieves a boiling radiator, so does a savings account prove a real first aid in the stressful times of sickness. It also is the film of protection which keeps the financial engine from knocking. Carry a "Southern Trust" savings account for emergencies.

LEWIS P. DELANO HONORED IN PASSING

In tribute to the memory of "a man who did much for the upbuilding of San Diego," many friends of Lewis P. Delano, 68, who was killed when his car went over a 14-foot embankment at Point Loma Last Saturday, attended the funeral services held this week. Mr. Delano had been active for city betterment for the last 12 years, having been a member of the city planning commission, of the civic committee of the chamber of commerce, and director of the San Diego Realty Board.
